I am a resident, but not a member of the American Academy of Ophthalmology. Can I participate in the Mid-Year Forum?

Participants attending the Mid-Year Forum must be members of the American Academy of Ophthalmology. AAO membership is FREE for residents and is completed by filling out an application signed by a program director. The Academy member in training membership application is available online.

How can I find out about sponsorship for members in training to attend the MYF?

Some ophthalmic state and subspecialty societies are participating in a program called the “Advocacy Ambassador Program” to encourage members in training (residents and those undergoing fellowship training) to attend the Mid-Year Forum. These societies are working with the program directors to select the most appropriate candidate(s) and are funding* the travel expenses (transportation/housing) for selected members in training to attend the MYF. If you are a resident you should contact your program director or your state ophthalmology society for more information.

(*Societies differ in the amount of funding they offer and may or may not cover all expenses.)
